WELCOME TO MISHKAN.
WE'RE GLAD YOU'RE HERE.

Dearest Mishkanite,

When I was 29 years old, packing up my Honda Civic in Los Angeles to return to Chicago to start a new Jewish spiritual community from scratch, many people said, "Chicagoans are old school and set in their ways. The wild stuff you guys do in LA and New York won't fly in the Midwest!"

Fifteen years later—with 110 weddings, hundreds of BMitzvahs, and (at least) 14 ordained rabbis who emerged from Mishkan's training—we have become the third largest synagogue in Chicago. It's amazing to look back on the days when we were a scrappy minyan hauling siddurim out of my car; the time before Rabbi Steven ran our signature BluePrint conversion program, and Rabbi Ari Moffic helmed our dynamic BMitzvah and teen programs.

Today, our full-time staff of 19 and a small army of part-timers are creating joyful Jewish community every day of the week all over the city and suburbs. In 5787, we're starting a new chapter: welcoming Rabbi Julie Fishbach to the team to support more justice work and our growing community's pastoral needs. (Find her and introduce yourself!)

Every year, more and more of you show up to build something larger than yourself, and the result has been nothing short of breathtaking. While many people respond to the uncertainty and chaos of our world by closing their hearts to difference and resisting change, Mishkanites choose empathy, curiosity, and building community—even when it's hard. That is inspired, down-to-earth Judaism in action.

Being part of a Jewish community is not just about showing up for simchas, shivas, BMitzvahs, and High Holidays (though it is about that)—it's also about maintaining a shared vision for a world that God would be proud of, in which all of God's creatures can flourish, and toward which we all work, together.

The Mishkan in the Torah was a space our ancestors carved out for artistic expression, music, and sacred moments—even in the midst of the harsh wilderness. Our Mishkan creates the space for us to meet our current landscape with courage, resilience, creativity, care, and joy—Jewish values that that have kept our people strong for 4,000 years.

Enjoy reading this year's State of the Mishkan, seeing where we've been and imagining where we can go, together. L'shannah tovah u'metukah—may this year be sweet, good, and filled with reasons to find hope, connection, and inspiration.

Rabbi Lizzi Heydemann

BUILDING BRIDGES ACROSS NEIGHBORHOODS, FAITHS, AND COUNTRIES

We prioritize building bridges across backgrounds and traditions so we can pursue a vision for a better world, together. This year, we had a few unique opportunities, from the West Side of Chicago to the Vatican, to put this fundamental value into action.

In our Roots & Rituals program with Lawndale Christian Community Church, young Jewish and Christian adults learned sacred texts together, shared food and cultural traditions, and explored ways to fight antisemitism and racism. Last year, we raised $50,000 for the restorative justice room at Lawndale Christian Legal Center. This year, we dedicated and hung a mezuzah by a local Black artist on its door.

We're expanding Jewish community in neighborhoods throughout Chicago and the suburbs. This year, Mishkanites hosted 30 community Shabbat dinners and seders with 260 people. These community-led events give people a chance to meet their neighbors to engage in learning and relationship-building.

Our rabbis are playing a greater role in local civic and spiritual life. At the invitation of Chicago's Mayor, Rabbi Lizzi hosted the first-ever seder at City Hall with cross-faith community and civic leaders. Rabbi Steven is serving on the Jewish Community Engagement Council to share our community's perspectives on key priorities and programs.

Rabbi Lizzi traveled to Rome with a Chicago delegation of civic, governmental, business, and faith leaders to meet Pope Leo XIV. During the trip, she explored ancient Jewish history, tried Roman Jewish delicacies, and made sure the pope received a kippah with the Mishkan and White Sox logos. The trip forged and deepened relationships with numerous Chicago religious and social justice leaders so Mishkan can continue to build bridges and dialogue that celebrates, protects, and includes all of us.

Rabbi Lizzi completed her third month-long residency with the Rabbinic Leadership Intensive at the Shalom Hartman Institute in Jerusalem, a cohort-based program with some of North America and Israel's leading rabbis. In addition to attending immersive sessions with scholars and thought leaders, Rabbi Lizzi spent her time advocating for the rights and dignity of everyone living there and did protective presence with Palestinian farmers and shepherds threatened by Jewish settler violence in the West Bank.

"It was great to be welcomed to a seder in Hyde Park. We've lived in the South Loop for two years but hadn't known people in the South Side Jewish community!"

– Becca Lenz-Levin

ADULT LEARNING, SOCIAL JUSTICE & COMMUNITY BUILDING

At Mishkan, we build knowledge, deepen connections, and orient our collective moral compass toward Jewish values and inspiration.

Every week, we're bolstering Jewish learning on a dizzying array of topics! We launched an Adult BMitzvah cohort and new programs on Kabbalah, Reading the Book of Esther as Literature, and What Happens When We Die. These opportunities to build Jewish literacy and community add to our daily morning minyans and Contact Chai podcasts where renowned authors and thought leaders join our rabbis for conversation.

Maggie's Place, our holistic health and wellness center, got a remodel with comfy new couches to support parents, LGBTQ+ youth, neurodivergent adults, people with chronic illness, and those seeking a space to process their fertility journeys. Plus, we added two new groups for those experiencing anticipatory grief and divorce. Maggie's Place also sponsored an exciting Shavuot weekend lineup of Torah poetry, dream interpretation, and gratitude workshops with award-winning Jewish poet and author Rodger Kamenetz.

419 TOTAL PROGRAMS/events

We continue to create spaces that allow people to build understanding instead of walls. Our three-part series, For the Sake of Argument, explored how Jews can better argue with each other no matter the topic or where we live. Our cross-faith workshop with Reverend Alvin Bibbs, Polarization and Peacemaking, offered practical tools to foster empathy, resolve conflict, and strengthen resilience. We are proud to platform and host peacemakers and creative thinkers working across the divide to create a better future for Israelis and Palestinians alike: EcoPeace, Jewish Climate Trust, New Israel Fund, JStreet, and Israel Policy Forum.

Showing up in civic life is just part of being a Mishkanite. Our rabbis spoke up about Jewish values and justice on local radio and TV, and protested at No Kings rallies and the Broadview Detention Center. Our Mishkan Local Action Team engaged in canvassing and events to support our immigrant neighbors and to expand mental health care resources in Chicago.

"All it took was one morning minyan and I was hooked. Thank you for providing a joy-filled setting for gratitude, praying, song and conversation where my family can all be together despite our distance."

– Holli W.

RITUAL AND CELEBRATION

The spaces where we immerse ourselves in the joy, music, reflection, and prayer for every season of life.

Shabbat is a community watering hole to process the week, offering the brightness and healing of Jewish tradition in what is sometimes a dark world. Our joyful Friday night and Saturday morning services welcome guest speakers and Mishkanites sharing their own journeys, in addition to the Torah portion. We're adding a virtual candle lighting, and an additional family Shabbat to our already packed calendar so more people can experience harmony and inspiration in Jewish community.

Community is most powerful in moments of joy and loss and this year we commemorated 75 life events. We celebrated weddings, baby namings, conversions, auf rufs, and 30 BMitzvahs—our biggest class yet. We also made minyan and sat shiva as we remembered loved ones Mishkanites lost.

HIGH holiday ATTENDEES

We carry people through the full emotional and spiritual seasons of the Jewish calendar, honoring each holiday with its own sentiments and rituals. Our High Holiday sermons and music provided the opportunity for over 2300 people to reckon honestly with the state of our world and our response as Jews. Three hundred people joined us for Shavuot weekend programs, including a Shabbat on dairy overload with ice cream and pizza. On the heels of Jimmy Kimmel almost getting canceled, our Tonight Show themed adult Purim party and our superhero themed family party drew over 600 costumed revelers. And because eight days of Hanukkah weren't enough, we stretched it to two weeks with 17 fried food, candle-lighting, and music programs for tots, teens, adults and everyone in between.

"The music, sermons, love, acceptance, and freedom of full spiritual expression makes Mishkan services an experience that elevates and rejuvenates my soul."

– High Holidays 5786 Attendee

FAMILY PROGRAMS

Enabling kids of every age to engage in Jewish learning and to develop a positive sense of identity.

Our early childhood programs are thriving with opportunities for babies, toddlers, and preschoolers at every Shabbat and holiday. Our capstone pre-K program, Mishpachton, is a monthly parent/child class about Jewish holidays with art projects, parent-to-parent conversations, and hands-on experiential learning.

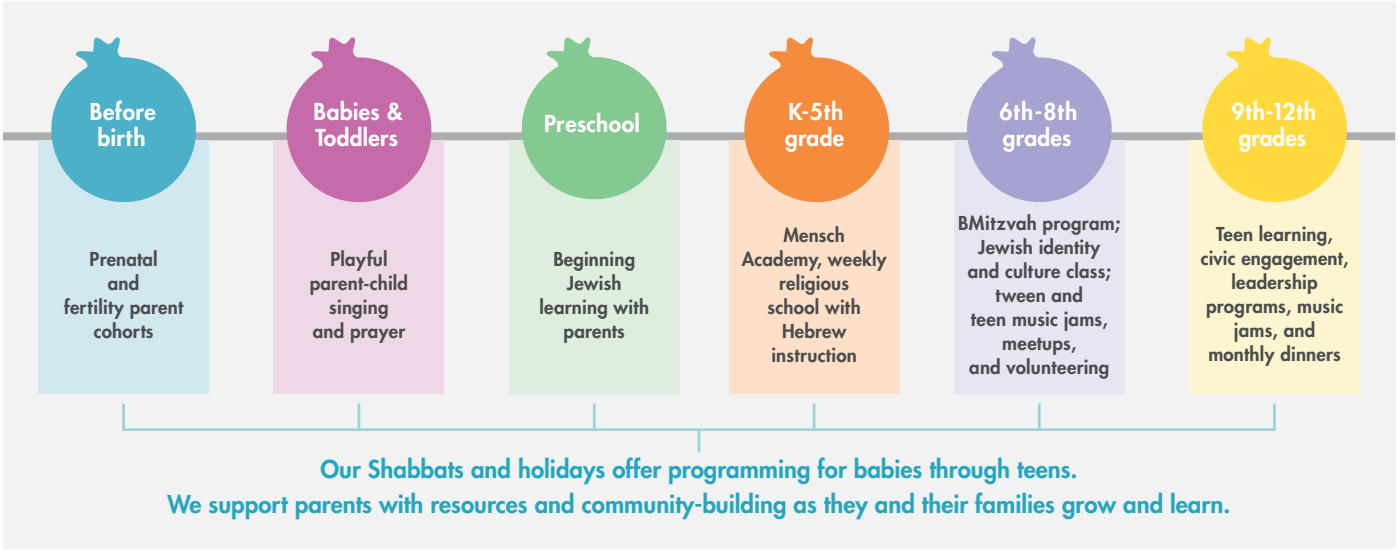

Families with toddlers through elementary schoolers powered down for the weekend singing, playing, and celebrating Shabbat at Family Camp. Led by Mishkan educators, families made new friends while learning about Jewish rituals and customs in community. And after bedtime, adults kicked back with Rabbi Lizzi over drinks and games.

"I love Mishkan as much as the zoo!"

–Mishkanite, age 4

Defying national trends, 83% of our BMitzvah kids continue to be actively engaged as teens. Our growing teen programs include a monthly dinner and salon, holiday celebrations, music jams, and robust volunteering opportunities. Mishkan teens are learning how to be Jews in the world, form their own opinions, and be secure in their identity—all while having fun together.

Thriving Jewish families are not just about the kids. Parents, we have your backs too! Our educator team held monthly "Raising Mensches" Zoom gatherings for parents to share Jewish practices and vent. Our small groups are growing to include parents of teens, new dads, and single parents by choice. We launched our inaugural Parents Night Out so parents could decompress with each other at a local brewery while we babysat at Mishkan HQ. And on Sunday mornings, a committed group of parents regularly test tile strategy (and luck!) in our community Mahjong group while their kids attend Mensch Academy upstairs.

OUR GIVERS

Everyone is welcome at Mishkan regardless of ability to pay for Buildership or programs. We are grateful for every dollar of support from every donor at any level. Those who are able to give at higher levels make our financially inclusive model possible. Thanks for your visionary support!

Macher Collective: $10,000+

In Yiddish, macher means a person who gets things done, literally a "maker." This group makes this community possible for so many others with their support.
